

The Board of Directors of Pathfinder Irrigation District held a special meeting today to discuss the timing of the 2026 irrigation season.

After careful consideration and with input from District water users, the Board has established a tentative delivery start date during the first week of July.

Based on the current forecast, the District anticipates an allocation of approximately 0.60 acre-feet per acre. This allocation may be adjusted if conditions change or circumstances warrant.

At this time, the Board of Directors is not in favor of borrowing water for the 2026 irrigation season. However, this position may also be reconsidered if weather conditions or other circumstances change.

While this provides a general outlook, please be advised that weather conditions and other operational factors will influence final decisions. Accordingly, both the delivery schedule and allocation remain subject to change.

The District remains committed to keeping all users informed and will provide updates as additional information becomes available.
